Pet into a charcoal masterpiece

Good quality actual photographs are best! I like to borrow several - all returned - to help me capture the personality of the animal. I select one to use to create the study however, the more I have for reference - the better the portrait. I need one good, clear photograph showing the eyes...most important!

The hallmark of my fine art is to create a portrait where the subject study alone is the focal point of the artwork.

I use fine quality charcoal paper along with good willow and vine charcoal. Fixative is applied to protect the drawing and all completed studies are black or white matted to 11" x 14" size.
